SHEKI TOUR

Snoozing amid green pillows of beautifully forested mountains, Sheki is Azerbaijan's loveliest town, dappled with tiled-roof old houses and topped off with a glittering little khan's place. Historic Sheki was originally higher up the valley around the site now occupied by rebellious Khan Haci Chalabi, who set up a defiantly independent khanate there in the 1740s. by a second, even more catastrophic flood in 1772, Nukha became the new royal capital. After 1805, when the khanate was ceded to Russia, Nukha continued to flourish as a silk-weaving town. Nukha was re-named Sheki in the 1960s. He built a second fortress at Nukha (today's Sheki). When the original Sheki was obliterated.
